állította be.

On the other hand, the fact that the Staphylococcus aureus strains isolated from the patients with the disease were sensitive to the antibiotics used in the treatment of the disease, is a very important finding. In the literature, it has been reported that Staphylococcus aureus is the most common pathogen isolated from the patients with the disease (17, 18). In the present study, the Staphylococcus aureus strains isolated from the patients with the disease were sensitive to the antibiotics used in the treatment of the disease. This finding is very important because it shows that the Staphylococcus aureus strains isolated from the patients with the disease are not resistant to the antibiotics used in the treatment of the disease. This finding is also very important because it shows that the Staphylococcus aureus strains isolated from the patients with the disease are not resistant to the antibiotics used in the treatment of the disease.
